

COTI specializes in working with children who have sensory processing concerns. Children with poor sensory processing may have difficulty engaging appropriately in a typical camp setting. To increase a child's ability to participate with peers in a typical camp setting, COTI offers:

→ STAFF TRAINING

COTI offers a general one hour overview on sensory processing and how it can impact a child's ability to participate in a camp setting. The goal of this presentation is to help camp staff better understand children with sensory processing needs.

Cost: $125

This one hour training is a general overview. To have a more detailed training tailored to a specific camp, please contact COTI to discuss your needs and pricing options.*

→ CHILD PRESENTATION

Upon request from a camp and parent, COTI is able to tailor a one hour presentation specific to a child who is currently working with a COTI therapist (either in the clinic or through school). It is recommended that this presentation be given prior to the start of the camp. This presentation will not necessarily be completed by your child's therapist but recommendations from them will be included. This presentation will include:

- A description of your child's sensory needs
- How your child's sensory needs may impact participation in that specific camp
- Recommended strategies for staff to use to increase your child's ability to participate appropriately in camp

Cost: Call for individualized pricing based on specific needs

→ CHILD OBSERVATION

COTI is able to have a therapist observe a child with sensory processing needs in a camp setting to provide specific recommendations of strategies to increase success in that environment. This can be completed for any child (does not need to be a current client at COTI). This includes:

- A one hour observation of your child in the camp setting
- A 30 minute informational discussion with camp staff regarding their questions and concerns
- Specific written recommendations provided following the observation

Cost: Call for individualized pricing based on specific needs